

NEW YORK POST

January 27, 2015

TV's most stressed-out folks live in ShondaLand – here's where they should escape to

The most stressed-out folks on TV live in ShondaLand — who needs a break more than crisis consultant Olivia Pope (“Scandal”), legal ace Annalise Keating (“How To Get Away With Murder”) and hot-doc Meredith Grey (“Grey’s Anatomy”)?

We scoured the globe to find the best vacation spots for these three leading ladies — let’s hope they cash in their frequent-flier points soon.

Olivia Pope

After this past season, which was spent covering up a sex tape with the president's daughter, pointing a gun at her own father and struggling between her love for Jake and Fitz, this uber-stylish crisis manager deserves a first class ticket out of DC.

Last we saw her, Olivia has disappeared — kidnapped, most likely — though we don't know where to.

► Our pick: Burgundy, France

The River Yonne in France's picturesque Burgundy region.

Let's hope when the show resumes on Thursday, we'll find Liv in bucolic Burgundy, swathed in a cashmere cardigan, sipping red wine from a giant goblet.

We think she'd love the elegant, yet cozy, Abbaye de la Bussière, a 12th-century abbey turned resort set on 17 park-like acres in the French countryside. The Relais & Chateaux property's one-Michelin-star restaurant features a deep, excellent wine list, and one of the region's most illustrious new producers, Maison Ilan, stores his barrels of pinot noir on the premises.